The box in which he sat was drapped with National colors. Between the sats Mr. Bushnell went on the stage and met Mr. Crane. Mr. Crane plays an heroic part and Governor Bushnell told him that it did not lie within the power of every Governor to perform such heroic feats as he nightly enacted. Governor Bushnell come out into the lobby after the play chuckling. Some one asked him why he was laughing. "Didn't you hear that fellow up on the stage," he answered,—the one who played the part of a mountainer—say when he broke into the party and saw all the wamen in full dress, that it looked as if it might be an open spring in Frankfort."

The ability of an Irishman to work his way on to the police force or into some Government place, led to the telling of a good story by Colonel Alexander Gordon, of Ohio, recently. Colonel Gordon said that a friend of his, an Irishman of noble birth, visited this country on a tour of investigation. He finally struck a little town down in the lower part of California. He had a guide, whom he asked what nationality predominated in the town. The guide replied, thoughtfully, that he didn't know, but the replied, thoughtfully, that he didn't know, but the town "had Englishmen, Germans, Italians and Frenchmen mostly." "Well, what do the Englishmen do." asked the tourist. The guide replied: "They own land mostly and cultivate." "And the Germans." Well, they keep saloons, stores and work on the farms." "And the Italians and Frenchmen?" "They work in the shops and vineyards, and do almost anything." The traveller was still curlous, and raid: "Don't you have any Irishmen here." "The guide said: "Oh, yes, we have Irishmen." "Well, what do they do?" queried the tourist. "Well, what do they do?" queried the tourist. "Well, what do they do?" queried the tourist. "Well, you see, "said the guide. "there are only two in the city. One is Mayor and the other is Chief of Police." Colonel Gordon said that his friend needed no further argument to convince him that the men cited were in truth native sons of Ireland.

Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia, is receiving an unusual volume of mail just at present. Mr. Elkins was in New-York on the day that the bids for the last issue of bonds were opened. As soon as the success of the subscription was assured the letters and telegrams of congratulation began to pour in. He has now returned to Washington, and he found many similar letters Washington, and he found many similar letters and tolegrams there. Mr. Elkins is credited with starting the ball rolling by his speech and resolution offered in the Senate in favor of such an issue. The Senator, in conversation with financiers in New-York previous to the opening of the bids, predicted that the loan would be subscribed to twice over, and that prices would average over 110. Mr. Elkins has said that he will not stop, now that the success of the loan is assured, but he intends to press to a vote his resolution, which is now before the Senate Committee on Finance, providing that all future issues of bonds by the Government shall be open to competition. He hopes to get his resolution through.

"If there is anything in politics that is laughable," said a prominent politician yesterday, "It is the way every candidate is giving Harrison the 'g ad hand' since he retired from the race, and is putting forth reasons why he ought to have the votes that would have gone to Harrison." fact has been impressed upon the minds of many liticians. The latest candidate for the honor of receiving Mr. Harrison's votes as Senator Shelty M. Cullom, of Illino's, whose Presidential boom is being inflated daily. The reason given why Mr. Collom should have the support of the Harrison men dates back to the Minneapolis Convention, and is told by a Cullom boomer. The story is that the Harrison opposition, having failed with Raine and other candidates, finally decided to unite on Cullom. Cullom had retired at midnight, and it was a later hour when the managers of the anti-Harrison forces broke in on him and urged him to allow his name to be used. He was told that all he need do was to allow the Illinois delegation to vote for him, and the delegates would do the rest. Culam strennously resisted, and said that the delegation had been instructed to vote for Harrison, and he would not interfere. After an hour's struggle, the task was given up. With the refusal of Culam, the combination practically gave up the fight, and Harrison was nominated. That is the way the story is told. It strikes politicians, however, that some one has hinted that Foraker was the hero of that incident. It remains for Mr. Culam to verify the report. Cullom should have the support of the Harrison TROUBLE BETWEEN THE BROTHERS. The story so often repeated recently that Perry and August Belmont objected to the marriage of their brother, Oliver H. P. Belmont, and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt was denied yesterday by a close friend of the family, who gave the real reason for triend of the family, who gave the real reason for the breaking off of relations between them. It seems that Perry and August Beimont, when the marriage was decided upon, expressed a desire that their brother induce his wife to give up the admony from her former husband. This is in the form of a yearly allowance. The expression of this wish deeply offended Mr. and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

The absence of the elder brothers from the wedding led many to infer that they looked upon the match with disfavor. But it is now said that they had no objection beyond the one named to the engagement or marriage.

BURIAL OF WILLIAM II. ENGLISH.

Indianapolis, Feb. 9 .- The body of William H. English was taken to the State House at 9 o'clock this morning and placed in the rotunda, where it remained until 1 p. m., and was viewed by 3,000 citizens notwithstanding the disagreeable weather. At 1 o'clock the body was transferred to the hotel in which he died and was placed in the corridor on the second floor. Here the funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. English, of New-York, a cousin of the deceased man. The services were simple and the address of Dr. English was more in the nature of a lesson drawn from the dead man's life than a culogy upon his character. Following the services at the hotel the body was taken to Crown Hill, attended by the Hendricks Club and the Masons of Centre Lodge, of which the deceased man was a member. The services at the grave consisted only of a prayer and hymn, which are a part of the Masonic ritual. At 1 o'clock the body was transferred to the hotel

JUSTICE PRYOR DOING WELL.

Upon inquiry at the house yesterday, it was learned that Justice Roger A. Pryor, who underwent a dangerous surgical operation last Friday, was resting quietly and is practically out of dan ger unless something entirely unexpected should out the use of narcotics, which is a most favorable indication. Up to yesterday he had been restricted to a diet of chicken broth, but at noon he was considered so far recovered that he was allowed to have a small bird and a cold bottle, which he greatly enjoyed. Justice Pryor has been a great sufferer for a long time. He had known the serious nature of his disease, but had delayed submitting to an operation, hoping that something would come about that would make it unneceseary. He endured such pain and agony that the would come about that would make it unnecessary. He endured such pain and agony that the necessity of the operation became imperative, and the date for it was fixed for the early part of last week. It was fixed for the early part of last week. It was fixed part of last week. It was fixed for the early part of last week. It was fixed for it.

The operation was performed at his home, No. 38 East Thirty-third-st., by Dr. Arfad G. Gerster, of No. 56 East Twenty-fifth-st., assisted by Dr. Of. G. T. Killani, of No. 132 East Fifty-seventh-st. Dr. W. R. Pryor, a son of Justice Pryor, and several other surgeons were also present. It was a question of life or death, and the highest surgical skill and wisdom were called into service, and it was only after the Justice had recovered from unconsciousness unfor the frects of amaesthetics that those in attendance breathed friely. Since then the patient has been ander the constant care of Dr. Gerster and Jor Pryor.

Mrs. Pryor said yesterday that it was untrue than her husband had been operated on for his trouble at any previous time. Poubtiess he would have had the operation performed sooner had it not been his desire to finish the January term. Through all his suffering and the ordeal of the operation he had been brave and patient. There were times when he could not sleep, and from the hitense pain would waik the room all night and then go down to take his seat on the bench. Mrs. Pryor said that examinations of the wound by Dr. Gerster showed that the healing process was going steadily on and that he had assured them of the success of the operation. Judge Pryor's sturdy constitution had stood him in good stead through it all. He is sixty-seven years old, but is well preserved and does not show his years.

THE BENEFIT FOR MARVIN CLARK.

The benefit for Marvin Clark, the blind journalist, which was given at the Casino last evening. was a great success. The house was well filled, and an attractive programme had been prepared. Among those who offered their services for the benefit were the Orpheus Orchestra, Hubert Arnold, vio-linist; Signor A. Carbone, barytone; Victor Herbert, conductor of Gilmore's Band; J. E. Dodson, monologue; Mme. Clementine De Vere, Max O'Rell, Mrs. Minnie Merthot, Cavaller Guisseppe Russitano, Wilton Lackaye, Claudia Hazen Barto, and others. A handsome sum was realized for Mr. Clark. ACCURATE INFORMATION EASY TO FIND. From The Courrier des Etats Unis.

The almanac which The New-York Tribine has just published for the year 1966's in no respect inferior to its predecessors, which have had so great a success. The Tribine Almanac is of great value on account of the accuracy and variety of the information it contains.

AN UNEQUALLED BOOK OF REFERENCE

From The Knoxville Journal.

"The Journal" has received The New-York Tribune Almanac for 1896. It is quite up to its usual high standard, and no higher praise could be bestowed upon it than to say that. No hook of the same number of pages contains so much variable information on so many subjects as The Tribune Almanac. As a book of reference it stands without an equal.

BEST POLITICAL STATISTICS. From The Chattaneoga Times.

The Tribune Almanac and Political Register is received. The presentation of the election returns in this annual have always been pecularly full and satisfactory. Its summaries of Congressional legis-lation are the best.

IT TAKES THE FIRST PLACE.

From The Sandusky Register. From The Sandusky Register.

The Tribune Almanac has one marked superlority over all others in that it is recognized and has been for more than forty years as thoroughly reliable. It is not a new venture. It is not a partisan publication, but takes the first place as an annual compendium of useful facts and figures, indispensable to the citizen who would keep pasted not only concerning political events, but trade and commerce.

A NATIONAL PUBLICATION.

A NATIONAL PUBLICATION.

From The Philadelphia Ledger.

Another valuable addition is made to the stock of reference works by the appearance of the New-York Tribune Almanae for this year. This important little book is always looked for and welcomed by those who have occasion to make frequent references, particularly of a political nature, as its contents are not only rich, but remarkably accurate. With the characteristic directness and genius of the editors of The New-York Tribune, which has placed that journal among the foremost in the country, there is nothing left in the Almanae issued to be desired. It is in every respect a National publication.

HONEST AND ACCURATE.

From The Iron Trade Review. The Tribune Almanac for 1896 has just been issued. Whether it be politics, religion, finance, commerce, population—or any of the lines covered by its statistical tables—The Tribune Almanac is exact. It is honest and non-partisan, and the fulness and accuracy of its information make it indispensable.

ITS FACTS AND FIGURES HONEST. From The Waterbury (Conn.) American.

Whatever may be thought of The Tribune itself as the aggressive advocate of a special view of all matters, political and partisan, it may be frankly concelled that there is no particantally in its Almanac. It is as honest as the day, and gives the exact facts and figures on all questions fearlessly and fairly.

NOTED FOR ACCURACY From The Rochester Herald.

The New-York Tribune Almanac is one of the best handbooks of political and statistical information anywhere issued. It is noted above all for its accuracy. COMPREHENSIVE AND TRUSTWORTHY.

From The Salem (Mass.) Gazette.

For many years the Almanac issued under the auspices of The New-York Tribune has been universally recognized as the most comprehensive and reliable work of the kind published.

> > BENEVOLENT ONE.

Hayana, Feb. 9.-As told in these dispatches on Friday last, the rebel force under Antonio Maceo was defeated at Candelaria, Province of Pinar del , by General Canella, and compelled to retreat in the direction of San Cristobal. On the same day Colonel Segura, with 600 men belonging to General Canella's column, which was in pursuit of the retreating rebels, came upon more than five thousand of the insurgents. The Spanish column had been divided, in order more effectively to pursue the rebels, and the troops under Colonel Segura fol-lowed the road from Candelaria toward San Cristohal, which, as the event proved, was the route taken by the rebels. As soon as the troops came up with the insurgents the latter formed an extensive circle about them. The troops formed into squares and continued the advance, keeping up an incessant fire that played havoc in the rebel lines. When near the village of Pozeo Hondo the troops directed their attack upon a house that was occupled by a number of rebels, and dislodged them. The building was then turned into a hospital for the troops. All this time the rebels were hovering about the troops, but Colonel Segura, who had with him a piece of artillery, used it with good effect, and by means of shells caused the insurgents finally to fall back.

At this juncture three squadrons of cavalry, under command of Colonel Ruiz, and two companies of infantry, belonging to the Simancas Regiment, op-portunely arrived and broke through the rebel circle. thus saving Colonel Segura's column from what ould undoubtedly have been an overwhelming de-The Spanish losses are given in the official report of the engagement as eight killed and thirtyfive wounded, while the supposed losses of the rebels are placed at 100 dead and 300 wounded. WIDOW, BUT DOES NOT REFORM Berlin, Feb. 5. Haron Hubert von Schorlemer-Alst has been arrested upon the charge of forging so,000 marks. Baron Hubert, who has long been a thorn in the side of his illustrious family, is by no means a stranger in New-York and Chicago, though his sojourns in those cities are not likely to be recalled by the people of either place.

He was formerly an officer in the Prussian army but got into debt and was obliged to take a hasty departure from Germany in consequence of his connection with a bill of exchange swindle. He was next heard of in New-York, and later in Chicleared off his debts and secured the suppression of the charges against him, enabling him to return to Germany. After bringing him home, his family succeeded in marrying him to a rich widow, and he went to live with her upon her estate in Grossenheim, Saxony, where she owned a large amount of property. For a while he appeared to be conducting himself property, and he became an active member of the local Conservative Association. He spent money freely, but as his wife had plenty, and it was known he was living upon her bounty, nothing was thought of it. He finally got into debt again, however, and this state of affairs was followed by more serious charges against him.

The Conservative leaders tried to hush the charges, and subscribed the sum of 20000 marks to cover the face of the fraudulent bills he had nitered. In the mean time further investigation into the Haron's affairs proceeded, with the result that it was found that his case was beyond help, whereupon those who had essayed to assist him left him to his fate. succeeded in marrying him to a rich widow, and he

> VENEZUELA'S LEGAL GROUNDS. PROFESSOR WESTLAKE SUGGESTS A NEW PHASE OF SETTLEMENT.

Lendon, Feb. 5.-John Westlake, Professor International Law in the University of Cambridge, has written a letter to "The Times" in which he says that Great Britain has not yet had any state ment of the egal grounds on which Venezuela claims a large and ancient part of British Guiana. He adds that if Great Britain made it a condition of arbitration that certain rules of law relating to

of arbitration that certain rules of law relating to the title to the territory should guide the arbitrators, it would be strictly following the example of the United States in the Alabama case.

Mr. Westlake further says he is convinced that the Venezuelan claims are preposterous, and asks the United States to assist in discovering how many of these claims can be disposed of by direct arrangement or by such arbitration as Great Britain can be fairly asked to enter upon.

MR. ASTOR'S DISMISSED EDITOR. H. C. CUST, FORMERLY EDITOR OF "THE PALL MALL GAZETTE," COMPLAINS THROUGH "THE TIMES."

London, Feb. 9 .- Henry Cockayne Cust, formerly Editor of Mr. Astor's paper, "The Pall Mall Gazette," has sent to "The Times" the correspondence between himself and Mr. Astor prior to his dismissal from the editorship of "The Gazette. Mr. Astor complains that he has always found garded the course of the paper.

Mr. Astor's letter of dismissal was dated February 3, 1896. In it he alludes to the habitual dis-regard of his instructions in December, 1833, and March, 1894, and complains of the sneers at and disparaging comments on the United States appearing in his paper, which, Mr. Astor said, were in bad taste and extremely offensive to him. In bad taste and extremely offensive to him.

Mr. Cust replies by saying that the files of "The Fail Mail Gazette" conclusively disprove the charges, and adds that Mr. Astor, on February I, after lavishly praising the conduct of the journal, especially in the recent American crisis, curtily asked him to resign in a week. Mr. Cust refused as he preferred to be dismissed. Mr. Cust instances instructions received from Mr. Astor to write strongly in favor of the restration of the empire in Brazil, which instructions were duly complied with.

GENERAL WEYLER'S PLANS. HE WILL TRY TO GET A MAJORITY VOTE IN CUBA TO STRENGTHEN THE WAR PARTY IN

PARLIAMENT. London, Feb. 9 .- "The Standard" will to-morrow publish a dispatch from Madrid saying that immediately upon landing in Cuba, General Weyler, the newly appointed Captain-General, will nego tiate with the Autonomist, Reformist and Conservative leaders to induce those parties to take part in a general election in March concurrent with elections in Spain, so that Prime Minister Canovas del Castillo can get a Parliamentary majority in April to vote fresh supplies to carry on the war in Cuba.

The present available resources will be exhausted in April. Besides a revision of the tariff, the Gov-ernment plans to double the capital of the Bank of Havana, enabling it to Issue several hundred millions of dollars in notes to assist the Cuban treasury.

FOR HONORABLE SETTLEMENT. London, Feb. 9 .- "The Daily Chronicle" will to morrow reiterate that it believes there is a good prospect for an honorable settlement of the Anglo-Venezuelan dispute.
